NOTICE TO THE MARKET

JBS maintains a normalized global meat trade

JBS S.A. (JBSS3 and JBSAY) having received consultations from partners, investors and from the market, communicates that the Company has developed a diversified Global production platform in order to serve customers around the world from a base of 64 different production units and 14 Distribution Centers. This diversified base permits the Company to protect it's customers by redistributing production and sales from one unit to another.

Authorities from importing countries make regular audits at these production units verifying compliance with legislation and implementing new requirements. JBS is constantly investing in these units to maintain the standards required by each country.

Recently, exports from a production base in Wisconsin to Japan were suspended, South Korea suspended imports from a factory in Colorado while exports from one of the Company's pork production units to Russia were interrupted. JBS is prepared for these stoppages and production is immediately redistributed from these units to other factories to maintain continuity of supply to customers. JBS has six other factories approved for export to Japan, 7 to South Korea and another two pork production units ready to produce for Russia.

The impact of these restrictions are immaterial to the results of JBS and the Company is constantly working with the USDA (United States Department of Agriculture) and with the corresponding authorities in each country where it has production bases to maintain, increase and reestablish global meat trade.
